What's Inside?

02 - 04 Course Descriptions

05 - Courses by Liberal Learning Designation

WGS 170.01 - Topics in WGSS: Gender and Sports

(LL: Gender and Behavioral, social and Cultural Perspectives)

This course will examine the role gender has played and continues to play in shaping sports in our society. Students will examine the following topics: history of sports, homophobia and athletes, Title IX, women's and men's athletics in comparison, collegiate and professional athletics, gender and coaching, sports and the intersection of gender, race and class, the representation of athletes in the media.

WGS 200 - Introduction to Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies

(LL: Behavioral, Social or Cultural Perspectives; Gender)

WGS 200 is a foundational course and an introduction to the field. Using an interdisciplinary lens, the course provides students with an introduction to the literature and the historical evolution of the discipline, as well as an understanding of how systems of privilege and inequality shape how we experience gender, sexuality, race, and other socially constructed identities. Using an intersectional method, this course encourages students to understand the ways identities form and impact one another. Course subtitles indicate the emphasis that each section will take in applying the core concepts.

WGS 220 – Gender and Popular Culture

(LL: Literary, Visual & Performing Arts; Gender)

This course offers a critical examination of the messages and “knowledge” that popular culture employs, disseminates and constructs about men and women, masculinity and femininity. We will take our objects of study from a wide range of sources including advertisements, magazines, television, film, cyberspace, hip hop, and sports. Be ready to watch TV, go to the movies, and listen to music as a scholar of gender.

WGS 222/HGS 210 - Non Violence and Peace Action

(LL: Gender, Behavioral, Social or Cultural Perspective, and Global Perspective)

This course offers an overview of key areas of theory and practice in Peace and Justice Studies, a growing interdisciplinary field with applications from the local community to international relations. Aimed at achieving social transformation through active nonviolence, peace studies promotes in-depth understanding of structures that promote and perpetuate violence and offers methods for transforming the terms of conflict.

WGS 225 – Gender in Children’s Literature

(LL: Literary, Visual & Performing Arts; Gender)

Our purpose in this course will be to develop a critical appreciation of the roles of children’s literature in the social construction of gender--not only how it prescribes or resists normative gender roles, but how it represents the subjective experience of growing up gendered. With a grounding in gender theory and critical texts, we will explore classics and contemporary favorites, limiting our scope to works for young children and pre-teens.

WGS 235 – Gender and Violence

(LL: Behavioral, Social or Cultural Perspectives and Gender)

This course explores the relationship between gender and violence. It is comprised of theoretical perspectives as well as the study of specific forms of violence. Topics include: domestic and intimate partner violence; sexual violence; child abuse; socially institutionalized forms of violence against women; attitudes and reactions to violence; national and global contexts of violence; the gendered character of violence in patriarchal societies; the intersections between violence, race, class and sexuality; men and violence.

WGS 236 Feminist Disability Studies

(LL: Behavioral, Social or Cultural Perspectives; Gender)

Through a wide variety of texts, materials, and representations, this course explores the origins and evolution of disability studies, and in turn encourages students to rethink and reevaluate what they have come to know about disability as well as feminist studies.

WGS 240 – Introduction to Gay and Lesbian Studies

(LL: Gender; Behavioral, Cultural or Social Perspective)

Introduction to Gay and Lesbian Studies provides students with an introduction to a quickly evolving field of study that is focused on gay and lesbian identity, politics, culture. Although focused primarily on the categories of “gay” and “lesbian,” this course situates its focus within a larger exploration of queer studies, gender analysis, and sexuality studies.

WGS 250 - Politics of Sexuality

(LL: Behavioral, Social or Cultural Perspectives; Gender; Community Engagement)

The political nature of personal life is a central critical concept of Women’s and Gender Studies. Politics of Sexuality introduces students to implications of this concept through the study of contested topics concerning sexuality, such as gendered sexual socialization, sexual violence, family structures, poverty and welfare, sexual identities, transgenderism, commodification, risky sexual behaviors, AIDS, sexual exploitation, pornography, prostitution, and the traffic in women.

WGS 255/LIT 255 Shakespeare & Gender

(LL: Literary, Visual, and Performing Art; Gender)

In this class, students explore the cultural work performed in the areas of gender and sexuality, as well as developing an ability to read early modern English and learning the conventions of each subgenre of Shakespeare play: comedy, tragedy, history, and romance. Class readings will include excerpts from early modern documents that provide a context for the plays.

WGS 260/AAS 280 - Africana Women in Historical Perspective

(LL: Gender; Race & Ethnicity; Behavioral, Social or Cultural Perspectives)

Africana Women in Historical Perspective is a global, cross-cultural survey of the lives and contributions of women of African ancestry. Emphasis will be placed upon shared elements of African culture that, when impacted by colonialism and/or the Atlantic slave trade, resulted in similar types of resistance to oppression, and analogous cultural expression among the women of four locales- Africa, South America and The Caribbean, North America and Europe.

WGS 302/HIS 385 Women in the US to 1900

(LL: Social Change in Historical Perspective; Gender)

Women have lived, worked and contributed to the history of the US. While we will be looking at some of the "great women" of American history, the course will focus more on the aspects of the general experiences of women and their political, social, cultural and familial relationships. The course examines the experiences and contributions of women to the development and growth of America, which necessitates an examination of their subordinate position in American politics, culture and society. The exploration of women's roles in the church, social movements, and social reproduction will enable students to describe and evaluate the institutions, movements, individuals, ideas and values of the major eras of U.S. history.

WGS 325 - Feminist Theories/WGST 510- Graduate Section

(Prerequisite: at least one WGS course) (LL: World View; Gender)

This course explores the diverse ways in which feminist theorists conceptualize women's status in society, systems of inequality and the category of "woman" itself. Students will gain an understanding of evolving ideas and debates in feminist theory, relate those to feminist practices, and develop their own theoretical abilities. The course will address the social construction of gender, the relation between feminist theory and activism, and how feminists have responded to issues of race, class, gender, and sexuality in current feminist thinking, as well as the classic feminist texts.

WGS 326 - Intersectional Qualitative Research Methods

(Prerequisite: at least one WGS course) (LL: Gender; writing intensive)

This course provides students with an understanding and knowledge of the research methods feminist scholars use and prepare students to apply these methods in their own research projects. The course focuses on the obligations of feminist researchers, the core issues in various feminist epistemologies and the feminist perspectives on various research methods and how feminist scholars challenge dominant theories of knowledge and the major methodologies employed in the social sciences.

WGS 330 - Gender and Public Policy

(LL: Behavioral, Social, and Cultural Perspectives; Gender)

Gender and Public Policy will serve as deep dive in grassroots organizing, political strategy, and moving the opinions of those with influence and power. This course will explore powerful movements and tactics throughout the country and the world, with examples at the state and local level, where change often moves swiftly.

WGS 341/LIT 313 - Queer Literature

(LL: Literary, Visual, and Performing Arts: Gender; Writing Intensive)

Queer Literature primarily reflects on "literary" texts (novels, poems, and plays), considering the aesthetics, politics, and history of gay and lesbian literary production and consumption. With recent advances in cultural studies and queer studies, this course will also embrace works that are sometimes situated outside of traditional definitions of "literary" (children's books, movies, and pulp fiction), with an examination of the course theme from a variety of literary methodologies, such as reader response criticism and discourse analysis.

WGS 365/AAS 375 Black Feminist Thought

(LL: World Views and Ways of Knowing; Gender and Race & Ethnicity)

Students will trace the thoughts, social and political activism and ideologies generated by women of African ancestry from the early 19th Century free black "feminist abolitionists" to contemporary times. "Womanist," "Feminist," "Critical Race Feminist," and "Black Feminist" ideologies will be emphasized through course readings and assignments that explore the emergence and perpetuation of an Africana women's feminist consciousness.

WGS 280/WGS 370.01/PHL 280 - Topics: Feminism and Philosophy

(LL: World Views and Ways of Knowing and Gender)

This course examines the role of the female and the feminine in both Eastern and Western philosophical traditions, uncovering the ways in which women are either included or excluded in the development of a society's fundamental assumptions about itself. The methodology will be historical, thematic, and comparative. Beginning with poststructuralist feminist perspectives the course moves backward to the ancient Greeks to show the philosophical origins of this orientation. From the primary exclusions of women from language, reason, and the ideologies that historically accompany them, the course examines questions of women's subjectivity, and agency in the political realm.

WGS 370.02 - Topics: Critical Whiteness Studies

(LL: Behavioral, Social, and Cultural Perspectives; Gender)

This course is paired with AAS 281/SOC 281 Sociology of Race in the US to form a course cluster on Critical Race Theory. Topics and assignments will be linked between courses, and students must enroll in both courses simultaneously. The overall goal of the course cluster is to equip students with knowledge, critical thinking skills, and practices that will prepare them to act as agents of anti-racism. The Sociology of Race provides a grounding in the social construction of racial and ethnicity and the systemic nature of racial prejudice and stratification in the U.S.

Feminist Critical Whiteness Studies expands on the first course with a focus on social constructions of whiteness, drawing on the theoretical literature of feminist anti-racism, and will engage students in exploring, critiquing, and practicing anti-racist strategies.

WGS 376/LIT 316 - Global Women Writers

(LL: Literary, Visual & Performing Arts; Gender; Global Perspectives)

This course will explore various literatures from around the world, encouraging students to examine the politics of gender, culture, and nation as well as the intersections of those systems of power. The explorations will cover a large range of topics, from arranged marriages to women in war in a variety of geographical areas around the world, particularly focusing on non-Western literatures. Common themes include feminist politics, post and neo/colonialisms, reproductive rights, translation, globalization, and activism.

WGS 398 - Feminism in the Workplace

(LL: Behavioral, Social, and Cultural Perspectives; Gender)

This internship course is a chance for students to consolidate and enrich their undergraduate learning while building the transition to life beyond college. A WGS education trains students to think critically and act strategically on issues of social inequity, particularly relating to gender and sexuality. Graduates enter a wide variety of careers. WGS 398, therefore, focuses not on the nature and demands of particular worksites, but on work itself and organizational practices that arise from feminist theory and scholarship.

WGS 495 - Senior Seminar: Research and Methods

(LL: Behavioral, Social, and Cultural Perspectives; Gender)

Capstone course for the Women's and Gender Studies major. Students are expected to use the expertise gained from their previous WGS courses to research and write their senior theses. Drawing on the methodologies and theories learned in previously taken courses, students work in a small focused seminar that not only emphasizes their own work but also constructively critiques the work of their peers.

G = Gender; GP = Global Perspective; R & E = Race and Ethnicity; SCHP = Social Change in Historical Perspective; BC = Behavioral, Social & Cultural Perspectives; LVPA = Literary, Visual and Performing Arts; WV = World Views & Ways of Knowing; WI = Writing Intensive; SI = Speaking Intensive; CE= Civic Engagement
