

Fall 2016

Registration Guide for Fall 2016 Courses

Registration for Fall courses starts this year on Tuesday, April 5 to Friday, April 15. The Department of Sociology and Anthropology looks forward to working with you as you plan your schedule. This document should help you to do so, but it is not a substitute for an advising appointment, so please arrange to meet with your major advisor before registration.

For complete list of course offerings, please refer to the chart on pages 3 and 4.

SOC 302 new required lab component

Beginning Fall 2016, students taking SOC 302 will now be required to also register for an additional 80-minute faculty supervised lab component. Equal to one extra class period, students will meet in computer lab 021 with your instructor for additional practice with SPSS, the software program used for statistical analysis. Much like choosing a conversation hour for foreign language, students will choose from one of two offered lab sessions as a co-component to the course.

New Anthropology Specialization:

The department is very excited to announce the launch of its fourth specialization. In addition to the three specializations currently offered: non-profit and community development, health and environment, and urban and ethnic studies, the department has been approved to offer a specialization in anthropology. Students in this specialization will take the Sociology core of SOC 101, SOC 301, SOC 302, and SOC/ANT 499 but will have their electives guided to anthropology. Please see the attached sheet which outlines the specialization. Students will take 1 elective of their choosing at the 200-400 level and will complete the Anthropology core of ANT 110 Intro to Cultural Anthropology and a choice of either ANT 111 Intro to Physical Anthropology, ANT 112 Intro to Archaeology, or ANT 213 Language and Culture: Intro to Linguistic Anthropology. Students choose 2 additional Anthropology electives at the 300 or 400 level and one course from a selection of qualitative methods courses to be offered. If you would like to register for this specialization, please stop by the department office, SSB 317, and Karen can assist you.

Advising

Individual Advising

Students are strongly encouraged to meet with their faculty advisor before registering for classes. Drop by your advisor's office to sign up for an advising appointment time. Sign-up sheets will be posted starting the week of March 21st outside your advisor's office. Please be on time for your appointment and review the HSS "Advising Syllabus" you received over email. If you are unsure who your advisor is, open your student account in PAWS and check the right-hand column under ADVISOR.

Group Advising

A group advising session with Department Chair, Dr. Borland, and Program Assistant Karen Dubrule will be held on Thursday, March 31 in Social Sciences 340 from 9:30-10:00 am. We will be available to answer any questions you may have. This meeting complements your individual advising appointment with your faculty advisor, and is especially recommended for students newer to TCNJ.

Preparing for Your Advising Appointment

Before meeting with your advisor, review the HSS Advising Policy and your advising syllabus to know what is expected of you. For the meeting, print and bring with you the following items:

1. A tentative schedule of classes for Fall 2016—shopping cart report
2. Your unofficial transcript from PAWS
3. Your academic requirements as listed on PAWS

**Remember that you must meet the following minimum grade requirements in the foundation courses before you may register for department core courses. You may register for core courses if you are currently enrolled in foundation courses, but be advised that your grades will be reviewed before the fall semester and if you do not meet the grade minimums, you will be de-registered from SOC301, SOC302 or SOC 499.

Remember! You cannot register for classes with an academic hold until your advisor lifts it after an advising meeting.

Fall 2016 Special Topics Courses!

Along with the many electives being offered this semester, please consider our “special topics” courses which give students and faculty the chance to focus on a topic that is not currently on the regular curriculum. Please note that you may register for more than one topics class and if you have already taken ANT or SOC 370 with a different topic, you may again register for ANT or SOC 370. All ANT topics courses can be applied to the new Anthropology Specialization. For Fall 2016, we offer the following topics courses:

ANT 370-01 —The Anthropology of Nutrition: Food, Biology and Culture (Dr. Beatrice)

How much attention do you give to the kinds of food you put into your body? What are the origins and health implications of sociocultural factors that influence food choices in human societies? The relationship between humans and food has shaped the way we look, function, think, and behave for millions of years and it continues to do so today. With an overarching emphasis on the interaction between human biology and culture, this course will examine food and nutrition from an anthropological perspective. We will discuss topics in three broad areas of inquiry: (1) the role of food in the evolution of human biology, anatomy, and behavior; (2) cross-cultural variation in attitudes toward food and patterns of food consumption in contemporary human societies; and (3) the relationship between nutrition and human health in a modern, global context. Students completing this course will be able to address real-world issues related to nutrition using a biocultural framework. Students will also likely come to view their own dietary practices in a new light.

ANT 370-02—Museum Studies (Dr. Delgado-Simmons)

This course examines the history, practice, theory, ethical issues, and critique of museums involved in the creation/development, presentation, and dissemination of anthropological information in a museum setting. The course also considers current issues facing anthropologists, such as: representation and interpretation of cultures, contested rights to collections, art and artifact, conceptualization of exhibitions, anthropological research, and influences of the museum/alternative forms of exhibition. Drawing from a wide range of disciplines including art, art history, science, history, and anthropology, this course will incorporate museum/exhibition visits and a creative final project.

ANT 370-03 — Human Culture and Technology (Dr. Leader)

This course will examine our species’ relationship with culture and technology. How do we define early cultural systems? What are our earliest indicators of cultural behavior? When does culture transform from a technique to assist in survival to a behavior that we depend on for survival? The course will begin in the palaeolithic with a review of the archaeological evidence of stone tool manufacture and proceed into modern anthropological concepts of culture.
